A culture within all cultures

THE BEST NORTH AFRICAN DESTINATION

When most people think of the ideal North African holiday to explore a vibrant culture and deeply rooted history, just along the Mediterranean coast beside its neighbor Libya, rises the title of 'best North African destination: Tunisia!

Tunisian cuisine is a diverse blend of flavors representative of the country's past and central location in Northern Africa. While the cuisine varies across regions, Tunisian food usually combines French and African flavors with a spicy kick. Rooted by the country's staple food, Tunisian dishes often feature fresh seafood or hearty lamb depending on local availability.

A melting pot of cultures, Tunisia doesn't just feature local food. Rather, foodies can savor all types of international cuisine in the country's larger cities.

Tunisia is most famous for its couscous based dishes, as the grain is a common staple in the country. Tunisian couscous dishes come in many forms, whether accompanied by meats, vegetables, or potatoes and is often served with harissa, a popular local spicy paste.

However, there are several other fantastic typical Tunisian dishes you can try when in the country, including Shakshuka, a stew like dish prepared with tomatoes, onions, garlic, green peppers, and topped with poached eggs, and Lablabi, a chickpea based soup.

Tunisian desserts also impress the fried almond bates and date filled pastries are the perfect way to finish a meal and the country is also well known for its exceptionally fresh seafood dishes.
