Sara is a local Jordanian artist, she is a pharmacist by training and works in the field of Life Sciences consulting alongside her role as a Program Director for global health and education initiatives with Children of War Foundation.

Sara has reconnected with her art and painting upon her return to Amman back in 2019. She is inspired by humanity around her and tries to depict messages of human fragility, emotions and hope in her works, particularly the journey of self-discovery and identity. Sara is a self-taught artist, she works mostly with acrylics on canvas and has adopted an abstract style. As she continues to grow in this field she seeks mentorship from fellow local artists to enhance her work, learn from them while continuing to develop her own personal touch. This will be Sara's first individual exhibition. She is passionate about her work as a tool to communicate with the world important yet hopeful messages. Sara, like many, has been extremely shaken by the atrocities committed in Palestine, and has used her art as an outlet to express the resilience of Palestinians in addition to spreading awareness about the daily monstrosities committed. She has dedicated three pieces of art to the Palestinian cause, the funds obtained from the purchase of those pieces will be donated to families in Gaza through the Taawon Foundation (www.taawon.org).
